POSTAL ARRANGEMENTS.

An important item in the estimates is the conveyance of foreign mails to and from this port. If we are to have direct mail communication with Panama, it will be necessary t pass a larger vote than has been granted in past years, and it will become a question again whether or not the gain will be in proportion to the outlay. There can be but o opinion on the merits of the present system; both as regards ourselves and British Columbia, it is most unquestionably bad. In Victoria it is difficult enough to reply by return mail to letters, and in New Westminster it is utterly impossible. If a regular day were fixed for the departure of mails from this port for Panama, the same regularity of dispatch would affect both one and the other

The irregularity of our mails under exist ing arrangements has become proverbial. It is hardly possible to say where the most blame attaches; but we are certainly inclined to give a fair share to the postal department of the Imperial Government, for this particular department upon which the superintendence of colonial postal arrangements devolves is not by any means famous for its efficiency. The office of Postmaster General in England is usually filled by a member of the Cabinet, but the Cabinet does not always contain all the most talented politicians of the day. Some there must be who bring ability and statesmanship to bear upon the affairs over which they exercise control, but there are a few places left for those whose talents are not transcendent and whose ideas of statesmanship are not too lofty. There are also posts which are regarded as stepping stones for aspiring ministers and easy chairs for those who have past the meridian of political life without achieving greatness. Amongst these may be ranked the department of the Post Office. It is a remarkable fact that no man of any great talent has held the responsible office of Postmaster General in England for any lengthened period during the last twenty years; the moment that any signs of ability or ambition to rise above the ordinary run of mortals shows itself, the individual is transferred to some other branch of the executive. Thus it is we presume that our mail rangements in all parts of the British possessions are bad, but in these colonies our position with regard to mails is something worse than bad. It is culpable in the home authorities that they make no sort of effort to help us. We have frequently in other regions heard the irregularities of postal communication commented upon severely, but it was because the regularity with which the mails were delivered marked the reverso as almost wonderful. But the mails we speak of were carried in British ships and under British contracts. Few colonies but our own are dependent upon foreign countries for their mails, and it is high time that our own system were put upon a better footing. Better far than granting $50,000 extra on our civil list, would be the expenditure of a similar sum upon our mails. If our exchequer will afford the outlay for one, we have no reason on the score of economy to grudge THE RESOLUTIONS AND UNION. The resolutions which will be brought before the House this day will, in point of fact, amount to a request to the Home Government to do that which the House were not unanimous in agreeing to ask directly, for in asking that one civil list shall be adopted for the two colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia, the previous question of Union is surely revived. Should these resolutions pass and there is but little room for doubt on that point, if we may judge from the tone of those Hon'ble members who up to the present time have spoken on the subject, the result must be one step towards the Union of the Colonies, and it augurs well for the future support of this great question, that its opponents should have so decidedly subsided since the direct question of Union was before them. When this subject is calmly considered on economical and common sense grounds, apart from the excitement of polities, our legislators can see very plainly that the Colony cannot afford to pay luxury of a sole Governor and staff of officials, so long as there exists a great necessity for funds for carrying out schemes of public improvement. No matter how great the amount of revenue that can be collected in the Island, until there is a much larger population than we are likely to have for the next five years, there can be no object in granting so large a vote as £3,000 per annum to the Governor, who really would not have work enough to employ him in administering the government of so small a place. We do not uphold the indiscriminate cutting down sys tem, and are most strongly averse to paying a Governor a stipend which would not secure the services of a first class man. Unless we have a Governor of some experience and ability, we can never hope to progress, and if we are to cut down the salary to an amount which a senier clerk in the Colonial Office in England would not accept as an advance upon his present position, what can we hopfor? Either we must expect a veteran halfpay officer, or a second-class Colonial Office clerk to come out as our Governor. The principal objection to a joint Governer for the two colonies has generally come from our neighbours, but if the Home Government sent out as Governor of the two colonies a gentleman who has no sort of connection with either of them, and who would be required to reside during half the year in British Columbia, we imagine the force of the objection would be removed. So far as Vancouver Island is concerned, we should by this course be in a position to secure the services of an efficient man who would be amongst us during a portion of the year and at all times within reach. True economy will be much more considered in such an arrangement, than in reducing the official salaries to a petty sum. The House have now an opportunity of stating fairly through His Excellency the opinion of the colony on this subject. They have but to express themselves strongly in favor of a

THE POLICE INQUIRY.

An investigation was made yesterday, before A. F. Pemberton, Esq., Chief Commis-sioner of Police, into the conduct of certain members of the Police force, against whom complaints had been made by Mr. A. J Welch and others, for alleged violence and improper conduct during the recent election.

Mr. Pemberton said before going into the nquiry, he wished to observe that the Police force here was constituted in the same manforce here was constituted in the same man-ner as in London. It was a sort of semi-military system, each being subservient to his superior. It was his (the Commissioner's) duty to regulate the discipline of the force. He wished to make a public inquiry into this matter, as it had excited great public inter-est, but cases of assault might arise which he could not himself deal with, and they would have to re to a higher court. Upon hearing have to go to a higher court. Upon hearing the complaint, he (Mr. P.) sent for the officer complained of, to see if it was a case in which he could issue a summons, but after which he could issue a summons, but after hearing the statement of the officer, who alloged that he had only carried out his orders, he thought he could dispose of the matter by personal investigation. The officer did not deny that he had arrested Mr. Welch, and would probably admit that in his statement he (Mr. Pemberton) enterationed no doubt himself that the officer had acted improperly, and for that reason he would enter upon the enquiry upon public grounds, but at the same time it should be borne in mind that the officer was young and had previously borne a good character, Statement of Vessels departed from Nanaimo, V. Destination and that the officer was young and that it was a difficult matter to keep good and efficient men in the force when the pay was small and the labor great. He wished the investigation to be as open as possible, and had therefore consented to admit the reporters of the press. He was now open to the press. The was now open to the press. Th hear any complaints.

Mr. Welch stated that a few minutes before the close of the poll on Thursday, he stepped out of the polling room on to the plank way. He came out for purposes connected with the election which it was no necessary to state. He was immediately spoken to in a very rough manner by police officer Butt, seized by the collar, and violently 16th Simr Emily Harris, M'Intosh 61 10. emptied roughly, and his watch and gold chain were torn from him in the roughest and rudest manner concertable in the presence of Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith then stepped forward and asked him whether or not he had voted in the most grossly offensive manner. On his indignantly refusing to answer, Mr. Smith said in a rough manner, "Lock him up! lock him up!" At this moment a number of friends consisting of Messrs. Ring, Helmcken, Selim Franklin and others, came in to know the meaning of all this. They asked what was the charge, and bail was offered to any amount, but no answer was given except that the watch was given back and he was hurried out again. Ho [Mr. W.] was much excited at the time, but those were the true particulars as far as he could remember them. The assault was totally unprovoked as numbers of witnesses would testify. It was with Superintendent Smith he folt most grieved. Mr. Pemberton objected to such a statement being made as the charge against Butt was alone under consideration. CLEARED.

After hearing the evidence of Lenton and the doctor, the jury returned a verdict of "accidental death," but recorded a complaint against the dangerous practice prevalent in the village of leaving wells uncovered. We hope this melancholy accident coupled with the verdict of the jury, will serve as a sufficient warning to parents and others.

Mr. S. stated that Mr. Franklin beckoned to him from the polling booth and he walked towards the door of the polling booth, but owing to two or three people being in front he (Mr. S.) stepped saide into the corner by the door waiting for Mr. F. to come to him, when the officer addressed him rudely, telling him to move away from that position. address the stereotyped assurance "that any liberally devised scheme for the education of the rising generation of this young, but growing colony, which may be introduced into the House, shall receive his attention and support." The public, naturally enough, have been patiently, or rather impaniently, looking for the redemption of this important pledge. But they look in vain. They are obliged to confess that in this, as well as in many other important matters, they apparently, have been deluded by their representatives, and the educational crywe must suppose, therefore, is a mere electioneering card, that can always be successfully played—abait that will always be swallowed—but practically, if we may judge by the past, it is merely a "vox et pretere anihil."

Possibly, however, the House may screen itself behind the back of that long standing sub-Committee on education, whose business it was long ago to have presented their report, and given the House the opp runnity of entertaining the question and settling it upon the surest foundation their united wisdom could device. We are not, however, aware that the sub-committee under consideration have held, as yet, one meeting on the subelections did not come every day, and he hoped due allowances would be made on both sides. The Police were like soldiers, who had to obey their orders soldiers, who had to obey their orders whatever the consequences might be. If the latter were ordered to keep a line, they did not hesitate to do it at the point of the bayonet; and the police were justified if required to use their batons, in fulfilling orders. He had frequently seen this done in Dublin and elsewhere, and had used it himself, but he was happy to say the people here were too intelligent to require such extreme measures to be resorted to.

After thanking the gentlemen who attended for bringing the matter to his hotice, the inquiry concluded.

Mr. DeCosmos asked leave to fix a day for a Committee of the Whole on the fisheries of the colony. The Speaker fixed Thursday week, 11th instant.

BANK NOTE BILL.

The House went into Committee on this bill, Mr. Bayley in the Chair.

Mr. Young said that at the last discussion on this bill, exception had been taken to clause 3 of his amendments, on the ground that the Government inspection therein proposed, would lay open the private affairs of the customers of the banks. He had gone to the two incorporated banks in the city, and shown the managers the clause in question, and they had requested the addition of the worlds "books necessary to show the amount words books necessary to show the amount commend this Committee to resign on the of notes in circulation," which they thought plea that business and not the lack of zeal or rould obviate the danger of private parties' competency will not permit them to give that attention to the subject it manifestly deof notes in circulation," which they thought would-obviate the danger of private parties affairs being made public.

Mr. DeCosmos asked if the hon. member proposed to add a clause compelling the banks to publish monthly returns of their transactions.

Mr. Young said that the bill he introduced yesterday provided for the publication of quarterly returns.

Mr. DeCosmos did not see why that could not be included in the present bill.

The clause passed as amended.

Clause 4, providing for the registration in 14 days after the passing of the act of paid up capital or available assets, stating the nature of such assetts, was agreed to.

Clause 5, inflicting a penalty of $500 on any one illegally issuing bank notes or exceeding the legal amount of issue, in contravention of this act, was also agreed to.

The hon. mover introduced an explanatory

The hon mover introduced an explanatory control of the subject it manifestly decompetency will not pervevs.

It does not require a microscopic eye to detect the glaring imperfections of the present in the management and control of our common schools and the funds voted for our common schools ntion of this act, was also agreed to.

The hon, mover introduced an explanatory ause to the effect that available assets shall taken to mean Government or Municipal masters and mistresses, no graduated scale o e taken to mean Government or Municipal countities, or securities readily convertible receivable, should be entrusted with the education of our youth. The schools are mixed, and of our youth. The schools are mixed, and yet no proper provision has been made for the wants of both sxess. Some of the school buildings are private property, and the government might at any moment be dispossessed of these and the masters and scholars would have to go begging for a moment at the way in which the grants are made. If you glance at the Estimates you will persent arried. rawn. Mr. Franklin suggested that the convert-ble securities should mean other than real notes other than by incorporated banks, shall be lawful after the 1st of March, 1865. shall be lawful after the 1st of March, 1865. Carried.

The bill was passed as amended, and was then reported.

The bill to provide for the publication of the registration of the banks in the colony, and for the registration of the shareholders, &c.

To-morrow (Wednesday) the House will go into Committee on Supply.

Sergi. Hill—said a few words as to the orders given to officers on duty to preserve a clear passage and to allow none but candidates, members of committees and voters to pass.

With respect to Mr. Gillard, it was stated the facts.

Mr. Muir was called and proved that be had officed some machinery for his mill; that it had been machinery for his mill; that it had been mach and he was ready to let him have it unless he paid something beyond the price of the machinery, being the allegand of Canada.

The children of that place will count up, we should say, at least 120. His average number of one goods supplied previously had which Mr. Muir disputed having receivable the amount of the bill for the machinery ordered and had actually for a portion of it which he had not taken away. The machinery was ordered in March, 1862. The plaintiff had made not taken away. The machinery from Messrs. Spratt & the matchinery in the mill in April, and in consequence of the mill had been out of the Police for the way you threw old Davis down.

Dougal, sen, addressed the jury. The ubstance of his remarks were embodied in he statement that "it was all a parcel of ambug." He then gave his evidence, thich was to the effect that there had been the bear of the native or half-preed children in this colony, and but for Christian benevolence. which was to the effect that there had been some previous dealings between Muir and their firm, and that a balance was due on an old account; and that the plaintiff refused to pay cash, but wanted to set off some lam ber instead of money.

Dougall, jr., gave evidence to the same effect.

His Lordship in summing up, told the jury that unless they were satisfied that the plain tiff had transfer before they consent to perpetrate the abuses we have ramed. "Economical refora" is, the cry of the day, but with what face the present members will return ere long to give an account of their trust to their trust to their trust to the present members will return ere long to give an account of their trust to their trust trust to their trust tru that unless they were satisfied that the plain tiff had tendered the full amount due to the defendants, their verdict must be for the de-defendants, their verdict must be for the de-fendants; and this notwithstanding the de-fendants had in their possession a quantity of iron belonging to the plaintil.

This learned counsel suggested that this was a somewhat novel interpretation of the law of lien, and that an offer of payment was all that the law required. all that the law required.

The jury retired to consider their verdict, and upon their return into court after an hour's absence, having agreed upon their ver-dict, the Judge informed the jury that he had discovered an error in the pleadings. The defendants had pleaded a set off which they had no right to do, where the action was fer unliquidated damages, and he thought it would be his duty to strike out the plea, and allow the defendants to bring a cross-The learned counsel said that he waived than is an iron frigate completely plated over a teak sheathing, and carries 40 guns of the largest oalibre in a covered battery, besides some piaces on barbette on her upper deck. She is to be rigged as a sailing frigate, and her masts, of a single piece, were brought from the forests of Catifornia. Her machines are nominally of 1,000 horse power, but the power may be increased to 4,000 horses. Her coal bunkers contain 1,000 tons, and her crew will consist of 700 inen. Her length on deck is 288 feet, her breadth 52 feet, her draught of water 23 feet. She is supposed to be the largest iron-coated frigate afloat. The learned conneel said that he waived any objection, and wished the matter to be settled at once.

The Chief Justice said that under the circumstances, before accepting the verdict of the jury he must give leave to the defendants to move for a new trial if the verdict

Mr. McCreight protested against such a course being adopted by the Bench unasked by the plaintiff, who for the sake of getting the matter settled, waived the objection.

The Court at last consented to receive the erdict which was for the defendant.

THE DUCHESS OF PERSIGNY'S BATHING-The Duchess of Persony's Bathing-Drass.—The Duchess de Persony has been making a journey through Normandy, having made some little stay at Dieppe, where she invention, and which promises to become the rage at all the bathing places next season. The costume is called a Satanetla, being of scarlet wool, with large flat buttons covered with black cited sit, and trimmed with broad bands of the same. It consists of a spare, scant tunic, reaching some half way above the knee, so displaying the shape in almost its whole length; the drawers are made per-fectly tight, en maillot, finishing at the ankle feetly tight, en maillet, finishing at the ankle with bands of the same shiny black oiled silk as those which adorn the hem of the tunic. To a slight, slender figure nothing can be more becoming than this costume, but the greatest amusement is anticipated at the thought of the effect to be produced by many of our ladies of fashion, who are althe thought of the effect to be produced by many of our ladies of fashion, who are al-ready devising the best method of catchining the symmetry and elegance of the Duchess de Persigny in her Satanella.—London Court Journal.
